

I am a freelance photographer working in commission as on my own photographic projects. The projects that I work on are most of the time socially engaged concepts fighting the injustice and giving a voice to the people who find themselves on the edge of the mainstream society. I like to take pictures of people, make interviews, write articles about the certain problematic of the subject and even sometimes follow the subject for a longer period, to be able to document the changes and progress in life. In my artistic practice, very important to all the projects is the beforehand extensive research about the related subject.

I am very open to all the commissions concerning documentary, reportage, portrait and fashion photography.

For my own free projects I work with analogue cameras, in commission with digital as well as analogue ones.

In my working space I have my own portrait studio that serves to support and extend my commercial work.
